

Arguments and Speeches of William Maxwell Evarts, Vol. 2 of 3 (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Arguments and Speeches of William Maxwell Evarts, Vol. 2 of 3 The Beecher Trial was the culmination of the most extraordinary and widely discussed scandal of the last century. The action was what is known in the law as an action for crim. con., the plaintiff setting his damages at $100,000. The defendant was the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, the famous pastor of Plymouth Church in Brooklyn. The plaintiff, Theodore Tilton, a younger man than Mr. Beecher by some twenty-two years, had been from early manhood, in some sense, a protege of Mr. Beecher and there had existed between the two men relations of mutual affection and regard. Mr. Tilton was a man of brilliant powers and had been a popular and successful public lecturer on ethical, moral and religious topics. He was also an author and journalist of considerable repute. As a young man, Mr. Tilton had been assistant editor, under Mr. Beecher, of The Independent, an influential journal devoted primarily to religious subjects. He succeeded to its chief editorship, but in the latter part of 1870 was summarily dismissed by the proprietor, Mr. Henry C. Bowen, and at the same time his connection with the editorial staff of the Brooklyn Union, a paper of which Mr. Bowen was also proprietor, was severed. This result, with its disastrous effect upon the fortunes of Mr. Tilton, was brought about very largely because of his attitude on social and religious questions that interested the public of that day and also by reason of stories affecting Mr. Tilton's private character that had been brought to Mr. Bowen's attention.
